WILLIAMS GENEALOGY.

PREFACE.

ONE Hundred years ago, as the record tells, Veach Williams lived in Lebanon, Conn., surrounded by all of his eleven children save two who had died in infancy. To-day, of his descendants numbering a thousand in six succeeding generations, barely half a dozen remain in the old homestead-town of Lebanon. The history of this family well illustrates that of many others dating back to the early colonial settlement of New England towns, where now the very names once and long familiar, since removal of the descendants who bore them, are rapidly disappearing.

No attempt is made to trace Robert Williams, the first settler of the family in New England, to his paternal roof-tree in Old England. Such undertaking would necessarily demand cautious and protracted investigation beyond the opportunities of the present writer; but it is to be hoped some other descendant, of sufficient leisure and other abundant resources, may be induced to enter upon this task, and not only successfully establish connection with the English stirp, but, pursuing the inquiry into the more remote past, further unveil the family record.

The two-fold purpose contemplated by the present publication, is first, the correction of a grave error¹ (already for nearly half a century embedded in print), in the line of descent of that branch of the Williams family now under consideration; and second, having conclusively established the true ancestral line, to present the full and accurate record of all of the descendants of Veach Williams to the present date.

To accomplish this definite object, no little time and labor have been expended in personal investigation of original town, church and gravestone records; of wills and the minutes and proceedings of probate courts; of local histories and various publications found in the libraries; and lastly, in direct correspondence with very many of the descendants.

The effort has been successful. The record of each descendant of Veach Williams, male and female, will be found upon the following pages, down to and inclusive of the tenth generation (from Robert), the last given in the present work. The history of this branch of the Robert Williams family may thus be considered as substantially complete. Some errors, typographical or other, will doubtless appear, notwithstanding the greatest care and vigilance, but it is believed they are few and comparatively unimportant.

Acknowledgment is here made, for the almost uniform courtesy with which those addressed have supplied the desired information. Without such aid, it would have been impossible to have brought the record down to the present time. The compiler is especially thus indebted to John Harper, Esq., President of the Bank of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Amos L. Williams, M.D., Brookfield, Conn.; Mrs. Ferdinand Rogers, Greene, N. Y.; George C. F. Williams, M.D., Cheshire, Conn.; Miss Julia S. Williams, Precep. Young Ladies' Inst., Windsor, Conn.; Mr. Alexander Williams, West Henrietta, N. Y.; Charles H. Moss, Esq., Asst. Cashier Moss Nat. Bank, Sandusky, O.; Mrs. N. D. Robinson, Norwich, Conn.; Mrs. Helen M. Cottrell, North Bend, Neb., and others only in less degree.

Few surnames are of more frequent occurrence than that of Williams. It had its origin in the prænomen, William, which first appeared in England eight hundred years ago, as the baptismal appellation of William the Conqueror. The chief followers of the Conqueror, who bore his name, thereafter passed it on to those in their service owing fealty, and the latter, in turn to others, until the name of William became most popular and general throughout England, and thus originated more surnames than any other.

Of its chief cognominal derivatives we have, upon competent authority, first, the names Williams and Williamson. Then the abbreviation Will has produced Willes, Willis, Wills, Willson and Wilson. The diminutive Guillemot or Gwillot has led to Gillett, Gilliat, Gillot, Gillott, and other forms, while Wiliamot, the more English version of that diminutive, has given Willatt, Willet, Willert, Willott, Wilmot and Wilmott. Again, in connection with the pet forms of the name are the surnames Bill, Billson, Bilson, Willy, Willey, etc.

Hence, among the earlier settlers in America, who bore the name of Williams, perhaps no consanguinity whatever could be discovered, were their individual families traced back to their respective English sources.

But whatever the uncertainty as to the derivation of the surname in England for many who bear it, the descendants, whose names are recorded within, may justly be congratulated that their own ancestral line is established and preserved, at least for the ten generations of this name in America, or from the first landing of Robert Williams in Massachusetts Bay to the present time.

WILLIAMS GENEALOGY.

FIRST GENERATION.

Robert Williams was born in England about the year 1593, perhaps in Norwich, Co. Norfolk, and had married, before coming hither, Elizabeth Stratton. He disembarked at Boston, with his wife Elizabeth and several children, in the year 1637, and before the close of that year had joined the neighboring settlement at Roxbury, where, thus early, his name and that of his wife are found upon the records of the Roxbury church to which the Rev. John Eliot then ministered. He was there made a freeman, May 2 of the following year.

That he was a staunch and typical Puritan, whose scruples forbade his conformity with the tenets of the Established Church in England during the intolerant reign of the first Charles, and encouraged his departure thence for Massachusetts Bay, where he could the more freely exercise his individual rights of conscience, may readily be believed from the single glimpse had of him, as signer of the Petition to the Governor of the Colony, 1672, in censure of Harvard College; which quaint and characteristically Puritan document reads as follows:

“The humble Petition of some of the people that lyve under the Jurisdiction of the massachusetts government, unto our honored Magistrats this 5th day of March 1672

Sheweth

That Whareas it hath pleased our ever honored Magistrats to send their letters to the Churches, to move us to a liberal contribution towards the Colledg. and in one of those leters declared that if any of the good people have any obiection you give us leave to propose it, and also are pleased to promise us, to adde your indeavor to remove the same. We take the boldnesse to propose an obiection not with any intent to shorten either our owne or others hands to so good and pius a work, as we trust we shaall make it appeare by our actions. but our only scope is, to indevor the removal of an evyl (as it appereth to us) in the educasion of youth at the Colledg. and that is, that they are brought up in such pride as doth no wayes become such as are brought up for the holy service of the lord, either in the Magistracy, or ministry especialy. and in perticular in their long haire, which last first tooke head, and broke out at the Colledg so far as we understand and remember. and now it has got into our pulpets, to the great greife and ffeare of many godly hearts in the Country.

we find in the scriptures that the sons of the prophets, and such as were dedicated to god, were brought up in a way of mortification and humility. we beseech you to consider amos 2. 11. 12. I raised up of your sons to be prophets, and of your young men to be Nazarites, is it not even thus o ye children of Israel saith the lord. but ye have given the nazarites wine to drink. Consider also pro. 16. 31 the hoary head is a crowne of glory if it be found in the way of righteousness. and are those hairens so found, that are defiled with this lust? we beseech you consider, whether all other lusts which have so incorrigibly brake in upon our youth, have not first sprung from the incorrigablenesse of his lust. our humble request is that you would please to use all due indeavours to cure this evyl. and so we commend you to the lord and to the word of his grace and remaine your Vmble petecinors att the thron of grac to assest and petitioners."²

He was one of the five townsmen or selectmen, 1647 and 1653.³ Was interested in the early founding of schools in Roxbury, and in 1668, with William Park, chosen to make provision for paying Master Prudden, who upon his part, "promised and engaged to use his best endeavour, both by precept and example, to instruct in all Scholasticall, morall and Theological discipline, the Children (soe far as they are or shall be capable) of the signers, all A B C darians excepted."⁴ Ellis speaks of him as "one of the most influential men in town affairs;"⁵ and Farmer calls him, "the common ancestor of the divines, civilians and warriors of the name who have honored the country of their birth."⁶

His wife Elizabeth d. July 28, 1674,⁷ æ. 80. He m. November 3, 1675, for second wife, Margaret, widow of Mr. John Fearing, and upon her death, for third wife (tradition only), Martha Strong, who d. December 22, 1704, æ. 92. His last Will and Testament is dated November 26, 1685, and was probated September 29, 1693. He died at Roxbury, September 1, 1693, æ. 100.

- 27 Ebenezer,¹² b. October 16, 1691, in Newton, whence he

¹² In the "Genealogy and History of Family of Williams," by Stephen West Williams, M.D., pub., Greenfield, Mass., 1847, Ebenezer, the above-mentioned, is assumed to be the son of Park Williams, who was the son of Samuel (5), second gen. This assumption is wholly erroneous. Examination of Wills of said Park, Ebenezer, William (brother of Ebenezer), and Isaac (10), third gen.; of grave-stone inscriptions, and of early town and church records of Boston, Roxbury, Newton, Lebanon and Mansfield, conclusively show Ebenezer to have been the son of Capt. Isaac (10), third gen., of Newton, as follows: By records of Boston, Park Williams had three children only, viz: Samuel, b. 1699, in Roxbury; Bathsheba, b. August 28, 1701, in Roxbury, and John, b. June 6, 1706, in Roxbury. In the work referred to, Park is credited with nine children, viz: Samuel, John, Ebenezer, Eleazer, William, Theoda, Sarah, Elizabeth and Martha. These names are found to be those of the children of Samuel, Park's eldest brother. Park Williams, aforesaid, settled in Lebanon, Conn., in 1708. Neither the records of Boston, Roxbury or Lebanon give evidence of any children of his, other than the three above-named. The grave-stone record of Ebenezer shows him to have died, "Aug. the 6th, 1740, in the 49th year of his age." He was therefore born in 1691, some seventeen years before Park removed from Roxbury, where his name would naturally appear, with the three previously named children, had he been son

early removed and settled in Lebanon, Conn., soon after its organization as a town, where the deed for his first purchase of land is dated, November 17, 1718. He there m. July 27, 1721, Mary, eldest dau. of Andrew¹³ and Elizabeth (——) Vetch of Lebanon. His name is found on the records of Lebanon (Goshen) Church as of Park. He was also born eight years before the birth of Samuel, the eldest son of Park, and hence, some half a dozen years before Park was married. Again, examination of the Will of Park discloses the names of the same three children and of no others. At date of execution of Will of Ebenezer, March 5, 1740, Park and his sons, Samuel and John, were also living in Lebanon, yet Ebenezer appoints, "my brother William, of Mansfield, my Executor," with wife Mary. Examination of records of Mansfield, for 1740, shows, "Capt. William Williams, of Watertown, Mass. Bay," was there resident, since 1737, nor is there found more than one of that name. Said records further show two children born to William, after settlement in Mansfield. Examination of records in Watertown next shows, "William Williams, late of Newton, Mass.," with four children born to him in Watertown. Examination of records of Newton discloses the names and dates of birth, of four more and elder children born to him, in Newton. Lastly, examination of the Will of William of Mansfield, upon the records of the Probate Court of Windham (at that time having jurisdiction of Mansfield), shows all the names of his children, found upon records of Newton, Watertown and Mansfield, thus identifying William of Mansfield and Newton, as one and the same person. But records of Newton show William to have been born in Newton, September 19, 1690, and to have been the son of Capt. Isaac, third gen., and to have had, among other brothers and sisters, a brother Ebenezer, born in Newton, October 16, 1691. Now, again referring to grave-stone inscription in Lebanon, we find Lieut. Ebenezer died, "Aug. the 6th 1740," thus making his age, at the time of death, according to the Newton record of his birth (Oct. 16, 1691), to be 48 years, 9 months and 20 days, or "in the 49th year of his age," as says the Lebanon grave-stone.

 31 Elizabeth, b. September 23, 1697, in Newton. Was living and unmarried, 1738, in Newton.

Came to New England, 1681; name found in Boston as late as 1687; settled in Lebanon, 1703, then having wife Elizabeth and several children. Admitted with wife to 1st Church, Lebanon, 1705; one of the founders of the 3d Church, 1729, where his signature is found, next after the pastor's, on list of signers of the Church Covenant. Lebanon records show original spelling of name to have been Vetch, which several years after his death was written Veach by those named for him.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Children of Lieut. Ebenezer Williams (27), Lebanon, Conn.

- 32 Jonathan, b. April 20, 1722, bapt. September 9, 1722, in Lebanon; m. September 26, 1744, Mary, dau. of William Whitney, of Norwich, Conn. He resided in Lebanon, but removed shortly previous to his death to Colchester, Conn., where he died, ———, 1804, æ. 82.
- 33 Elizabeth, b. May 2, 1725, bapt. May 9, 1725, in Lebanon; m. June 24, 1745, Joshua, son of Hon. Ebenezer West, of Lebanon. Her husband was graduated A.B., Yale College, 1738, and A.M., 1741. Resided in Lebanon. Was Judge of the County Court of the Colony. Member of the Governor's Council of Safety authorized by the General Court during the War of the Revolution. Deputy to the General Court of Connecticut, for twenty-six semi-annual sessions, 1753–1777. Was Deacon in Lebanon (Goshen) Church. He died November 9, 1783, æ. 68. She d. May 15, 1791, æ. 66.

He resided in Lebanon from time of birth until his death, where names of both himself and wife appear on the records of the third or Goshen Church, as admitted to membership therein November 24, 1776. Was Captain of a company of Connecticut

Colonial militia. Was, for the fourteen consecutive years immediately prior to and during the early years of the War of the Revolution, or from 1765 to 1778 inclusive, townsman or selectman, together with Jonathan Trumbull, Governor of the Colony, William Williams, Signer of the Declaration of Independence, Hon. Joshua West, Capt. Seth Wright and one or two others, who constituted the remaining members of such Board during the greater part of this period. Here at the home of the Governor of the Colony and of the Speaker of the Colonial House of Representatives, at a time when all was busy preparation in anticipation of an eventful war, it may be presumed, those called into service of the town were its most patriotic and representative citizens. Was Deputy to the General Court of Connecticut, 1785. His last Will and Testament bears date October 27, 1795. His wife Lucy died¹⁷ August 10, 1795, æ. 62. He died¹⁷ September, 11, 1804, æ. 77.

of the earliest minutes of the probate are still found in the Probate Court at New London, where the first spelling is Warlworth. In the next memorandum, shortly after, the name is again thus written but corrected, by striking out the r and inserting an s after the l. Examination likewise of the records at Groton—the subsequent place of residence of this family—shows widows' signature and those of all the children of the second generation, to various deeds, to be invariably spelled Walsworth. No other orthography is found, until probate (at Windham) of the Will of John (grandfather of the Chancellor), where name is first written Walworth.

PREFACE.

The ancestral line here presented, embracing thirty-four generations or from King Egbert to the present century, is a record of historic facts verified by proof; for so much thereof, as comprises the interval of time between the reign of Egbert and the arrival of Lady Susan and her husband, Gen. John Humfrey, in Massachusetts Bay, is the well authenticated record given by Burke in his Peerage of Great Britain,¹ a work repeatedly approved and accepted by the courts of record in England, as furnishing the best evidence; while the remaining or American part of the same is as fully and satisfactorily established, by the original official records and other documentary proofs, in the State Archives of Massachusetts and Connecticut, and elsewhere, much of which is here incorporated in the form of foot-notes.

No more than a casual glance along the line of the ten centuries here given is necessary, to discover a notable array of sovereigns, soldiers and statesmen famous in British or European history. Without attempting to show an exhaustive list of these historic personages, a few of the more renowned among them may here be pointed out.

And first, are noticed sixteen of the early rulers of England—namely, Egbert, Ethelwulf, Alfred, Edward the Elder, Edmund I., Edgar the Peaceable, Ethelred the Unready, Edmund Ironside, William the Conqueror, the first two Henrys, John, Henry III., and the first three Edwards. But Edward III.² was the son of Isabella, daughter of Philip the Fair, King of France, who descended from Hugh Capet and nine intervening French

Kings; among whom were Robert II., Philip Augustus, Louis VIII., and St. Louis. The last is not the only saint who figures in this pedigree. The mother of Edward II. was Eleanor, daughter of Ferdinand III., King of Castile and Leon, who was canonized by Clement X. Again, through Richard of Connigsburg, Earl of Cambridge, whose mother was Isabel, daughter of Peter the Cruel, the line of descent is direct from Sancho the Great, and Alphonso the Wise. Other crowned ancestors are the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa, and several Kings of Scotland, notably Malcom III., and "the gracious Duncan," his father.

Finally, the Shakespearian gallery is in truth crowded, with the portraits of those found in this line of ascendants—e. g., besides those already mentioned, Lord Hastings (of the reigns of Edward IV. and Richard III.), George Duke of Clarence, Richard Plantagenet "the Yeoman," Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, Edmund of Langley Duke of York, and Lionel of Antwerp Duke of Clarence.

NOTES, BIOGRAPHICAL AND HISTORICAL.

I.

Egbert,¹ after spending some years of his youth at the Court of Charlemagne, became in 802, upon the death of King Beorhtric, the 17th King of the West Saxons. His wife was the Lady Redburga, "a very bitter enemy of Briton." In 823, he defeated the Mercians, and soon after completed the conquest of both Mercia and Northumbria. Such was his military success, that in 828, the States of the Heptarchy were united, for the first time, into one kingdom, the limits of which were nearly identical with those of England proper. He was thereafter not infrequently styled in his Charters, "Rex Anglorum" or King of the English. His children were two sons and one daughter: Ethelwulf, eldest son and successor; Ethelstan, by his father deputed King of Kent, and of the East and South Saxons; and Edgith, commonly called St. Edgith, Abbess of Polesworth. King Egbert died February 4, 837, and was buried at Winchester.

II.

Ethelwulf,² the eldest son, succeeded to the crown upon the death of his father. His first wife was Lady Osburga, daughter of Oslac, a nobleman of Saxon descent. Their issue were four sons and one daughter, viz: Athelstan (who died before his father), Ethelbald, Ethelred and Alfred, who in succession wore the crown of England; and Ethelwith, the daughter. Upon the death of Lady Osburga, who died in 855, he again married in old age, Judith, the young daughter of Charles the Bald, Emperor and King of France, and great granddaughter of the Emperor Charlemagne. King Ethelwulf died, without children by his second wife, January 13, 858, and was entombed in the Cathedral at Winchester.

III.

Alfred the Great,¹ born 849, youngest son of Ethelwulf, succeeded to the crown in 872, upon the death of his brother, King Ethelred I. He married, 869, Elswitha, daughter of a Mercian Earl, who bore him three sons and three daughters; of whom Edward was the second son and successor of his father. King Alfred died Oct. 28, 801, and was buried at Winchester. His widow, Elswitha, died 804.

IV.

Edward the Elder,² who upon the death of his father succeeded to the crown, married Equina, a shepherd's daughter, and had by her two sons and one daughter, viz: Athelstan, his successor; Alfred, who died early; and Edith, who married Selrick, the Danish King of Northumberland. Upon the death of Equina, he married, as second wife, Elfleda, daughter of Earl Ethelhelme, who bore him two sons and six daughters, among whom was Equina, who became wife of Charles III. of France, and mother of King Louis III.; and Edhied, who married Hugh the Great, head of the Capetian dynasty. King Edward the Elder afterwards married, for third wife, Edgnia, daughter of Earl Sigelnie. She died, 963, having long survived the King, who died, 924. The issue of the last marriage were two sons and two daughters, of whom Edmund, eldest son, succeeded his half-brother Athelstan, and Edred, youngest son, succeeded his brother Edmund in the kingdom.

V.

Edmund,¹ born 921, eldest son of King Edward the Elder and Edgnia his last wife, and who succeeded to the crown upon the death of his half-brother, King Athelstan, Oct. 17, 940, married, in the first year of his reign, Elfgiva, who bore him two sons, viz: Edwy and Edgar, who in succession wore the crown, after the death of their uncle, King Edred. King Edmund died May 26, 946, and was succeeded by his brother Edred.

VI.

Edgar the Peaceable,² born 943, youngest son of King Edmund, succeeded to the crown upon the death of his elder brother, King Edwy, in 959. He married, in 961, Ethelfled the Fair, daughter of Earl Ordmar, and had one son Edward, styled Edward the Martyr, who became his successor. King Edgar afterwards married as second wife, Elfrida, daughter of Ordgar, Duke of Devonshire, who bore him two sons, viz: Edmund, born 965 and who died 979, and Ethelred, who succeeded his half-brother, King Edward the Martyr. King Edgar died 975, and was buried in the abbey of Glastenbury.

VII.

Ethelred the Unready,³ born 967, succeeded to the crown, May 18, 979, upon death of King Edward the Martyr. He married, when about seventeen years of age, Elfreda, daughter of earldorman Thored, who bore him six sons and three daughters; among whom was Edmund, third son, his successor to the throne. After death of Elfreda, he married, about 1102, Emma, youngest daughter of Richard III., Duke of Normandy, and paternal aunt of Robert, father of William the Conqueror. The issue of this last marriage were two sons and one daughter, viz: Edward, styled Edward the Confessor, who succeeded to the Kingdom after King Hardi Canute, his half brother; Alfred, whose eyes were put out by order of Harold Harefoot, and who died in confinement; and Goda, who became the wife of Dreux, Count of Vixin, France. King Ethelred died April 23, 1016.

VIII.

Edmund, surnamed Ironside,¹ born 990, third son of King Ethelred the Unready, succeeded to the crown upon the death of his father. He married, 1014, Alitha, the beautiful widow of Sigefurth the Dane, and had by her two sons, viz: Edward, his successor, and Edmund, born 1017, who married a daughter of Solomon, King of Hungary.

IX.

Edward the Exile,² born 1015, eldest son of King Edmund Ironside, was upon the death of his father, sent (with his brother Edmund) into Hungary. He there married Agatha, sister of Sophia wife of Solomon, King of Hungary, and daughter of Henry, Emperor of Germany. He was recalled into England, during the reign of his uncle, Edward the Confessor, and soon after his arrival, died at London, 1057, leaving him surviving, Edgar his son, and two daughters Margaret and Christina, the latter of whom became a nun.

X.

Margaret,³ eldest daughter of Edward the Exile, and (after the death of her brother Edgar, surnamed Atheling, without issue,) the sole heiress of the Anglo-Saxon crown of England, married Malcom III., King of Scotland, son of Duncan I. (who was murdered by Macbeth, his cousin.) Their issue were three sons and one daughter, viz: Edgar,

Alexander and David, who were, each in succession, Kings of Scotland, after death of their father; while David, last named, was likewise progenitor of James I. of England, and Victoria the present Queen of England. The daughter was Matilda, who married Henry I., King of England.

XI.

Matilda,¹ only daughter of Malcolm III., Caenmor, King of Scotland, and Margaret his wife, married Nov. 11, 1100, Henry I., King of England, styled “Dei gratiâ Rex Anglorum,” and surnamed Beauclerc. He was born at Selby, co. York, 1070; crowned Aug. 5, 1100, and was the third son of William the Conqueror, and Matilda his wife (daughter of Baldwin, 5th Count of Flanders, fifth in descent from Ethelwida daughter of Alfred the Great, and tenth in descent from Charlemagne). After the death of Matilda the queen, Henry I. married Adeliza, daughter of Godfrey, Duke of Louvaine, but by her had no issue. The King died at St. Denis, in Normandy, Dec. 1, 1135, and was interred in Reading Abbey. By queen Matilda, who died 1118, and was buried at Winchester, Henry I. had issue, two in number, of whom was Matilda, successor to the crown.

XII.

Matilda or Maud,² styled “Matildis Imperatrix Henrici Regis filia et Anglorum Domina,” born 1103-4, married, in 1114, the Emperor Fifth of Germany, who died s. p., 1125. The Empress married, 2d, April 3, 1127, Geoffrey Plantagenet, Count of Anjou, and died September 10, 1167, having by him (who died 1150), Henry, who succeeded to the English throne as the second of that name; Geoffrey, Count of Nantz, who died s. p., and William, Count of Poictou, who also died s. p.

XIII.

Henry the Second,¹ styled "Rex Angliæ, Dux Normandie et Aquitaniæ, etc.," born at Mantes, 1133, crowned December 19, 1154, married in 1151, Eleanor, daughter and co-heir of William the Fifth, Duke of Aquitaine, by whom (who died June 26, 1202 and was buried by her husband's side at Fontevrand,) he had issue, eight in number; of whom was Richard, successor to the crown, and John, successor to the crown after his brother Richard. The King died July 6, 1189, at Chinon, near Tours, France, and was interred at Fontevrand, in Anjou.

XIV.

John,² styled "Joannes Rex Angliæ et Dominus Hiberniæ, etc.," and surnamed Lackland, was born at Oxford, December 24, 1166, and crowned May 27, 1199; was betrothed when young, in 1173, to Alice, elder daughter (and co-heir) of Humbert, Count of Maurien, now Savoy. This princess died before her nuptials. King John married, 1st, Isabel, daughter and heiress of William, Earl of Gloucester, from whom, on ground of consanguinity, he was divorced; 2d, married Isabella, daughter and heiress of Aymer Taillefer, Count of Angoulême, by whom (who died 1246 and was buried at Fontevrand) he left at his decease, at Newark Castle, Notts, October 19, 1216, of issue, Henry his successor to the crown, with four others. King John was buried in Worcester Cathedral.

XV.

Henry the Third,³ styled, in the last of his reign, "Rex Angliæ Dominus Hiberniæ et Dux Aquitainiæ," born at Winchester, October 10, 1206, crowned October 28, 1216, married January 14, 1236, Eleanor, second daughter and co-heiress of Raymond Beranger, Count of Provence, by whom (who after the King's decease, took the veil at Ambresbury, in Wiltshire, and there died, a nun, June 24, 1291) he left at his decease, at Bury St. Edmunds, November 16, 1272, Edward, his successor to the crown, with five other children. King Henry the Third was buried in Westminster Abbey.

XVI.

Edward the First,¹ styled the same as Henry the Third, born at Westminster, June 17, 1239, crowned August 19, 1274, married, 1st, Eleanor, daughter of Ferdinand the Third, King of Castile, by whom (who died November 28, 1290, and was buried in Westminster Abbey) he had of issue, Edward, Prince of Wales, his successor, and seven others. The King married, 2d, Margaret, daughter of Philip the Third of France, who died February 14, 1317, after bearing the King two children. King Edward the First died at Burgh-on-the-Sands, near Carlisle, July 7, 1307, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

XVII.

Edward the Second,² styled the same as Henry the Third, surnamed of Caernarvon, born there April 25, 1284, crowned February 23, 1307-8, married January 28, 1307-8, Isabella, daughter of Philip Fourth, the Fair, King of France, and by her (who died August 22, 1358) had as issue Edward, Prince of Wales, his successor to the crown, and three others. The King, who was deposed by Parliament, January 7, 1327, was murdered at Berkeley-Castle the 21st of September following, and was buried at Gloucester.

XVIII.

Edward the Third,¹ styled the same as Henry the Third, until the 13th year of his reign, when he assumed the style, "Dei Gratiâ Rex Angliæ et Franciæ et Dominus Hiberniæ," was born at Windsor, November 13, 1312, proclaimed King January 25, 1327, and crowned February 1, 1328. Married, January 24, 1329, Philippa, daughter of William, Count of Holland and Hainault, by whom (who died August 15, 1369, and was buried in Westminster Abbey) he had Edward, surnamed the Black Prince; William of Hatfield; Lionel, Duke of Clarence; John of Gaunt; Edmund of Langley; Thomas of Woodstock, and five daughters. King Edward the Third died at Shene (now Richmond), in Surrey, June 21, 1377, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

XIX.

Lionel of Antwerp,² Duke of Clarence, K.G., third son of Edward the Third, born at Antwerp, November 29, 1338, married, 1st, Lady Elizabeth de Burgh, daughter and heiress of William, Earl of Ulster. He was created Duke of Clarence, 1362. His lordship had by Elizabeth (who died 1363), an only child, Philippa. This nobleman married, 2d, Violante, daughter of the Duke of Milan, but had no other issue, and died in Piedmont, October 17, 1368.

XX.

Lady Philippa Plantagenet,³ only child of Lionel, Duke of Clarence and Lady Elizabeth de Burgh, and granddaughter of Edward the Third, born August 16, 1355, married Edmond Mortimer, 3d Earl of March, and by him (who died December 27, 1381) had issue, five in number, of whom was Roger, eldest son and 4th Earl.

XXI.

Roger Mortimer,¹ 4th Earl of March, Lieutenant of Ireland, eldest son of Edmund, 3d Earl of March, and Lady Philippa Plantagenet, born 1377, married Eleanor, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Kent, and was slain at Kenlis, Ireland, 1398, leaving by his countess (who died October 23, 1405) Edmund, Earl of March, who died s. p., in the Castle of Trim, Ireland, and two daughters, Anne and Eleanor.

XXII.

Lady Anne Mortimer,² eldest daughter of Roger, 4th Earl of March, and Lady Eleanor his wife, married Richard of Coningsburg, Earl of Cambridge, son of Edmund, Duke of York, and grandson of Edward the Third. By this alliance the house of York derived its right to the crown of England. Prince Richard, her husband, was put to death in 1415, for conspiring against Henry the Fifth, when the Earldom of Cambridge became extinct. Their issue were Richard, 3d Duke of York, and Isabel, who married Henry, Earl of Essex.

XXIII.

Richard Plantagenet,³ 3d Duke of York, K. G., son of Richard of Coningsburg, Earl of Cambridge, and Lady Anne Mortimer, married Lady Cicely Neville, daughter of Ralph, first Earl of Westmoreland. Prince Richard had been restored to the Earldom of Cambridge and allowed to inherit, as 3d Duke of York. He afterwards became one of the most powerful subjects of the kingdom, laying claim to the throne as the descendant of Lionel, Duke of Clarence, second son of Edward the Third, whereas the reigning monarch, Henry the Sixth, sprang from John of Gaunt, the third son. Thus arose the devastating War of the Roses. Prince Richard was supported by the Nevilles and other powerful families, but his ambitious projects closed at the battle of Wakefield, in 1460, when his party sustained defeat and he himself was slain. By his wife, Lady Cicely, (who died May 31, 1495) he had Edward his successor; Edmund, Earl of Rutland; George, Duke of Clarence; Richard, Duke of Gloucester (afterwards Richard the Third); Anne, who married Henry, Duke of Exeter; Elizabeth, who married John, Duke of Suffolk; and Margaret, who married Charles, Duke of Burgundy.

XXIV.

George Plantagenet,¹ K. G., son of Richard, 3d Duke of York, and brother of Edward the Fourth and Richard the Third, was created Duke of Clarence in 1461, and married Lady Isabel, daughter and co-heir of Richard Nevill, Earl of Salisbury and Warwick. Prince George was charged with high treason and suffered death by being drowned, it is said, in a butt of Malmsey in the Tower, 1477, when his honors became forfeited. This Prince left, by Isabel, a son, Edward, Earl of Warwick, and daughter, Margaret, Countess of Salisbury.

XXV.

Margaret Plantagenet,² daughter of George, Duke of Clarence and Lady Isabel, daughter and heir of Richard, Earl of Salisbury and Warwick, became the last of the Plantagenets, upon the execution of her brother Edward, Earl of Warwick, in 1499. This lady was (October 14, 1513) afterwards advanced to the dignity of Countess of Salisbury, and received letters-patent establishing her in the castles, manors and lands of Richard, late Earl of Salisbury, her grandfather. Notwithstanding these marks of royal favor, an opportunity several years afterwards was seized upon, to destroy the only remaining branch of the Plantagenets, in this illustrious lady. At the advanced age of seventy years, 31 Henry VIII., she was condemned to death unheard by Parliament, and beheaded on Tower Hill, May 25, 1541, when her dignity, as Countess of Salisbury, fell under the attainder. Her ladyship had married Sir Richard Pole, K.G., and had issue, Henry, Baron Montagu; Sir Geoffrey; Arthur; Reginald, Archbishop of Canterbury; and Ursula, who married Henry, Lord Stafford.

XXVI.

Henry,¹ Baron Montague, K.G., eldest son of Margaret, Countess of Salisbury, and Sir Richard Pole, K. G., had special livery made him of the lands of his inheritance, and, in the 24th Henry VIII., was summoned to Parliament, as Baron Montagu. Being subsequently charged with the design to elevate his youngest brother Reginald, to the throne, he was beheaded on Tower Hill, January 9th, 1539, when the Barony of Montagu became forfeited. His lordship had married Lady Jane, daughter of George Nevill, Lord Abergavenny, and left two daughters as co-heirs, viz: Lady Katherine and Lady Winifred.

Thomas,¹ 3d Earl of Lincoln, K. B., son of Henry Clinton second Earl of Lincoln, and Lady Katherine, daughter of Francis 2d Earl of Huntingdon, married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of H. Knevitt of Charlton, Wiltshire. This nobleman had by his countess eight sons and nine daughters, of whom two sons and five daughters died early. Of his surviving children, Theophilus, third son, married Bridget, daughter of William Fiennes, Viscount Saye and Sele. He succeeded his father as 4th Earl, and was ancestor of the present Duke of Newcastle, whose eldest son is, by courtesy, now styled Earl of Lincoln. Another son is found, 1625, at Emmanuel College, Cambridge University.² One daughter, Frances, married John, son of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Lord Proprietor of the Province of Maine. Another daughter, Susan, married John Humfrey, Esq., Deputy Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Company; and Arbella,³ a third daughter, for whom the Admiral ship of the fleet (in which Gov. Winthrop embarked, and she herself sailed for New England) was named,⁴ married Isaac Johnson, Esq., Assistant in the Massachusetts Bay Company. This family Cotton Mather called "religious," and "the best family of any nobleman then in England."⁵ His lordship had summons to Parliament, February 18, 1609, as Baron Clinton and Saye. Lady Susan Clinton, daughter of Thomas 3d Earl of Lincoln, and Lady Elizabeth, his wife, married John Humfrey, Esq., "a gentleman of great merit for his services and affection to our country in its first attempts,"¹ then residing for the most part in London, but having a country house (the Dolphin) at Sandwich, co. Kent.² Mr. Humfrey was matriculated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge University, 1609, and was graduated, A.B., therefrom, 1613.³ He was a lawyer⁴ by profession, in England, and first appears identified with New England interests, in the organization of the Dorchester Company, 1624, of which he was one of the Patentees and the Treasurer.⁵ Subsequently, by the encouragement of the Countess of Lincoln and others, but chiefly through the exertions of Mr. White, puritan minister of Dorchester in England, who sought to establish a religious Colony in New England, the Council of Plymouth (to whom had been issued, on the 3d of November, 1620, the Great Patent of New England under the royal hand of James the first), on the 19th of March, 1627, granted territory extending "three miles to the northward of the Merrimack river and three miles southward of Charles river and in length from the Atlantic Ocean to the South Sea," unto the Massachusetts Bay Company, which grant was confirmed, March 4, 1628, by Royal Charter of Charles the first, unto Sir Henry Roswell, Sir John Young, Thomas Southcoat, John Humfrey, John Endicott, and Simon Whitcomb, the original six Patentees of the Company,⁶ and unto ¹ Isaac Johnson and Lady Arbella, his wife, came to New England in the Admiral ship, "Arbella," 1630, and settled at Salem. They both died within a few weeks after their arrival. He was a gentleman of prominence; was son of Abraham, and grandson of Robert of Clipsham, co. Rutland, Arch-deacon of Leicester, 1584. His mother was daughter of William Chadderton, D.D., the Puritan Bishop of Lincoln. Mr. Johnson was named in the Royal Charter of the Mass. Bay Company, as Assistant, and in list of members of the Boston Church founded at Charlestown, stands after Winthrop and Dudley and before Wilson, their minister. His Will, made shortly before embarking for New England, may be read in 3 Mass. Hist. Coll. 8th, 244, in which he names, as executors, with Govs. Winthrop and Dudley, the famous John Hampden.

Rev. Cotton Mather, in his Magnalia, Bk. I., 22, says: "Of those who dy'd after their first arrival, not the least considerable was the Lady Arabella, who left an Earthly Paradise in the family of an Earldom, to Encounter the Sorrows of a Wilderness for the entertainments of a pure worship in the House of God, and then immediately left that Wilderness for the Heavenly Paradise, whereunto the compassionate Jesus, of whom she was a follower, called her. But as for her virtuous husband, Isaac Johnson, Esq., his mourning for the death of his Honorable Consort was too bitter to be extended a year; about a month after her death his ensued, to the extreme loss of the whole Plantation. But at the end of this perfect and upright man there was not only Peace but Joy."

the removal of the Charter and Government of the Company, in 1630, to New England, upon which event, Mr. Humfrey being unprepared to go with them, the place of Deputy Governor was filled, by the election thereto of Thomas Dudley.¹ Although Mr. Humfrey remained in England until 1634,² still he was chosen as early as 1632, in anticipation of his arrival, one of the Assistants of the Company, by the Colony in Mass. Bay, and annually thereafter chosen as such, until his final return to England.³ About this time, 1631, the first Patent to Connecticut was issued, by Robert Earl of Warwick (who had obtained his grant from the same Council of Plymouth), "unto the right honorable William, Viscount Saye and Sele; the right honorable Lord Brooke, the right honorable Robert Rich, the honorable Charles Fiennes, Esq., Sir Nathaniel Rich, Knight, Sir Richard Saltonstall, Knight, Richard Knightly, Esq., John Pymm, Esq., John Hampden, Esq., John Humfrey, Esq., and Herbert Pelham, Esq., as original Patentees, and unto their heirs, assigns and associates."⁴ He subsequently embarked, in ship probably the Planter, before July, 1634, accompanied hither by Lady Susan his wife, and their children, at least Ann, Dorcas and Sarah, and bringing with him money, goods and cattle for the Colony. He was likewise the bearer of certain propositions, from "persons of great quality and estate and of special note for piety" (Lord Saye and Sele and others), who had under advisement their own removal to New England.⁵

1634, he was one of a Committee, with Gov. Winthrop, sen., John Haynes and John Endicott, Esqs., to make provision and have sole direction, in the event of war; in 1637, of a Committee, with the Governor and others appointed by Court, "to take order for a Colledge at Newtowne"¹ (Cambridge); in 1639, of a Committee consisting of Messrs. Endicott, Humfrey, Winthrop, jr., and others, to prescribe terms for a "Fishing Plantation," etc. Was also Magistrate, and one of the Judges of the Quarterly Court of the Colony. Was in 1641, member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and in June of that year chosen the first Major General of the Colony.² He was destined, however, by a sudden and rapid succession of disasters, soon to permanently sever all connection with New England. He had already accepted the Governorship of New Providence, in the West Indies, to which the lord proprietors there had invited him, but the conquest of that Colony by the Spaniards, soon after, compelled his abandonment of that enterprise.³ Meantime, the impoverishment of his estate by unproductive investment and losses by fire, the vanishing hopes of founding new Plantations in New England and elsewhere, with which enthusiasm and ambition had inspired him, and the sad fate which befell two of his younger children at Salem, all served to embitter his last days here. He disposed of his plantation, at Lynn, to Lady Deborah Moody for the consideration of £1100., and with family re-embarked for England,⁴ October 26, 1641, in the same ship with Rev. John Philips. ⁵ "Honoured Sir,

Although I have not occasion to be troublesome unto you as formerly, in point of my successless occasions, yet can I not be wanting to the acknowledgment of anie of those favours I formerly found from you. It is true the want of that last occasion (the losse of all I had in the world) doth, upon rubbings of that irreparable blow, sometimes a little trouble me but in spirit. Little further concerning him remains to us, save that he had died before June 25, 1661, at which date administrators upon his estate, in New England, were appointed.¹ There are also extant, letters of his to John Winthrop, the younger, in 1631-2, while he tarried in England and shortly before embarking for New England. They abound in pious sentiments and words of encouragement to the plantation here, but shed no light upon his individual career and family history.² His connection by marriage with the house of the Earl of Lincoln, however, is indicative of his high social rank. He was called by Gov. Winthrop, sen., "a gentleman of special parts of learning and activity and a godly man, who had been one of the first beginners in the promoting of this plantation

But by what intermediate hands soever this is befallen me (whose neglects and unkindness God, I hope, will mind them for their good) yet I desire to looke at his hand for good (I doubt not) to me, though I doe not so fullie see which way it may work. His fatherly administrations have hitherto been gracious and I trust his goodness and loving kindness will follow me all my dayes according to his owne free covenant upon which I desire to cast myself. Sir, I thank you againe and againe (and that in sinceritie) for any fruites of your goodness to me or mine; and for anything contrarie, I bless his name I labour to forget and desire him to pardon. For anie thing from hence, I know you will have it from those who have more abilitie and libertie to satisfie themselves and their friends in these kinds, knowing myself unfitt to give these advertisements, which the state of things in your relations to us require. ² It would be difficult to cite another family in England whose influence was so early exerted, so far reaching and effective in the first settlement of the Western Continent. From this House sprang various agencies for early acquisition and civilization in New England. It had, indeed, a representative interest in every foot of what, two centuries and a half ago, constituted New England territory. One of the Earl's daughters, Lady Frances, was wife to John, son of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, the chief lord proprietor of the province of Maine; Theophilus, son and 4th Earl, was husband to the daughter of Lord Saye and Sele, who besides his great proprietary interests in the West Indies, was with John Humfrey and others, a patentee under the Charter of Connecticut. Humfrey and Johnson, two other sons in law, were, respectively, Patentees and Assistants in the Mass. Bay Company, of which the former was likewise Deputy Governor, and the latter the largest holder of any of the patentees and assistants here. Further, Dudley, who had been member of the family as Steward to the Earl, and Bradstreet, who had also lived in the family in the capacity of Tutor, were each, afterwards and in succession, Assistants and Governors of the Mass. Bay Company (Mather's Magnalia, Bk. 2, 19). And to John Wincomb, who had "lived in the family of the Countess of Lincoln," was granted in 1619, by the Virginia Company, a Patent for the Plymouth Colony, in the interest of the Pilgrims at Leyden, of which, however, they were unable to avail themselves. (Hutchinson's Hist. I., 13.) Thus, naturally, was held a near and large relation by the Earl of Lincoln, and the Countess, to all New England interests. For letter of Gov. Dudley to the Countess of Lincoln, see Young's Chronicles, 303.

John Myles⁴ of Swanzey, who soon died, February 3, 1683, leaving him surviving his widow, who likewise

² Savage gives place of marriage at Salem, but could not have seen depositions from Essex County Court files (note 1, p. 28), which indicate the contrary. Nor can there be found any evidence that Mr. William Palmes was ever here. One Edward Palmes lived in New London, and there married Lucy, only daughter of Gov. Winthrop, second. From the fact that Gen. Humfrey and Gov. Winthrop were intimate friends, it is possible that William and Edward Palmes, who married their respective daughters, were of the same family in England. And, possibly, Mr. Samuel Avery, who married Susannah Palmes, daughter of William, at Swanzey, first met with her on a visit to her relatives in New London.
